Introduction

Since March 2020, a number of laws have been enacted to provide relief to people and businesses affected by the Coronavirus Disease 2019 (COVID-19) pandemic. These include the Families First Coronavirus Response Act (FFCRA; P.L. 116-127) and the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act (CARES Act; P.L. 116-136), which were enacted in March 2020, and the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2021 (P.L. 116-260), which was enacted in December 2020.

The laws enacted in response to the pandemic include a wide array of provisions, some of which are amendments to existing programs, benefits, and authorities, and others that are newly established. Many of these provisions were enacted on a temporary basis, where Congress specified an expiration date or limited period during which they would remain in effect. Some provisions had been set to expire in 2020 and were extended with the enactment of P.L. 116-260, which also established a number of additional pandemic relief provisions.[1] For certain other provisions, Congress specified that availability would be tied to the duration of a declared emergency or disaster.

This report identifies provisions enacted in response to the COVID-19 pandemic that are set to expire during the 117th Congress (i.e., before January 3, 2023). These provisions are presented in a series of tables organized by subject matter. The expiring provisions that are within the scope of this report are primarily those that define the authority of government agencies or other entities to act, usually by authorizing a policy, project, or activity. These include provisions that temporarily suspend or delay the period during which a provision of law, regulation, requirement, or deadline is in effect; establish a moratorium on a particular activity; or provide authorization for certain provisions of law, regulation, or other requirements to be waived. The provisions included in the tables are generally limited to those that were initially enacted or amended in response to the pandemic, are currently in effect, and have expirations specified in statute that are set to occur during the 117th Congress.

In identifying expiring pandemic relief provisions, CRS examined the following laws enacted since March 2020:

- the Coronavirus Preparedness and Response Supplemental Appropriations Act, 2020 (P.L. 116-123);
- the FFCRA (P.L. 116-127);
- P.L. 116-128 (relating to Veterans education);
- the CARES Act (P.L. 116-136);
- the Paycheck Protection Program and Health Care Enhancement Act (P.L. 116-139);
- the Student Veteran Coronavirus Response Act of 2020 (P.L. 116-140);
- the Paycheck Protection Program Flexibility Act of 2020 (P.L. 116-142);
- P.L. 116-147 (relating to the Paycheck Protection Program);
- the Safeguarding America's First Responders Act of 2020 (P.L. 116-157);
- the Continuing Appropriations Act, 2021 and Other Extensions Act (P.L. 116-159);

[1] Provisions included in pandemic relief legislation that had been set to expire in 2020, prior to the enactment of P.L. 116-260, are addressed in CRS Report R46634, Pandemic-Related Statutory Provisions Expiring in 2020.

- the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2021 (P.L. 116-260); and
- the Johnny Isakson and David P. Roe, M.D. Veterans Health Care and Benefits Improvement Act of 2020 (P.L. 116-315).

The provisions addressed in this report generally have an expiration specified by statute. A small number have been administratively extended to remain in effect beyond the statutorily specified expiration. The provisions in the report are distinct from those with expirations that are tied to the expiration of a declared public health emergency or other emergency or disaster related to the COVID-19 pandemic.[2] Provisions that are entirely contingent upon one of these declarations being in effect are not included in this report, nor are provisions that are contingent upon a state emergency declaration being in effect.[3] The report also generally does not address the expiration of the availability of supplemental appropriations that have been provided in response to the pandemic.

Expiring Pandemic-Related Provisions

The tables below identify provisions enacted in response to the COVID-19 pandemic that are set to expire during the 117th Congress. These are organized by subject matter, as follows:

- Table 1. Health Care Provisions
- Table 2. Unemployment Insurance Provisions
- Table 3. Business Provisions
- Table 4. Tax Provisions
- Table 5. Finance Provisions
- Table 6. Transportation Provisions
- Table 7. Housing Provisions
- Table 8. Nutrition and Agriculture Provisions
- Table 9. Child Welfare and Home Visiting Provisions
- Table 10. Education Provisions
- Table 11. Veterans Provisions

Within each table, the provisions are generally organized first by the laws under which they originated, and subsequently by division, title, and section number. For each provision, the tables display the section number of the originating law, the provision name or a description, its expiration, and relevant CRS points of contact and resources. If the expiration has been extended beyond the initially enacted date, the public law that provided the most recent extension is displayed in parentheses. For example, in Table 1 the entry for Section 3709(a) under the CARES Act displays an expiration of March 31, 2021. The expiration for this provision was extended beyond the initial expiration date of December 31, 2020, specified in Section 3709(a) of the Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. §§5170 and 5191); and the national emergency declared by the President under Section 201 of the National Emergencies Act (50 U.S.C. §1601 et seq.). a. The CARES Act foreclosure moratorium applied to single-family mortgages backed by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), including the Federal Housing Administration (FHA); the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA); the Department of Agriculture (USDA); and Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac. It expired after May 16, 2020, but these entities have all extended the foreclosure moratoriums for mortgages they back multiple times, most recently through June 30, 2021. It is possible they may extend them further.

b. The CARES Act single-family mortgage forbearance provisions, like the foreclosure moratorium, apply to federally backed mortgages. The CARES Act allows eligible borrowers to request forbearance during the "covered period," which is not defined in that section of the law. Some of the covered entities (HUD, USDA, and VA) have announced deadlines for servicers to approve an initial forbearance period, most recently extending those deadlines to June 30, 2021. The CARES Act limits the length of forbearance to 360 days (an initial period of up to 180 days and an extension of up to 180 days). The covered entities have all announced that borrowers can receive up to two additional three-month extensions under certain circumstances. See FHFA, "FHFA Extends COVID-19 Forbearance Period and Foreclosure and REO Eviction Moratoriums," press release, February 25, 2021, https://www.fhfa.gov/Media/PublicAffairs/Pages/FHFA-Extends-COVID-19-Forbearance-Period-and-Foreclosure-and-REO-Eviction-Moratoriums.aspx; The White House, "Fact Sheet: Biden Administration Announces Extension of COVID-19 Forbearance and Foreclosure Protections for Homeowners," February 16, 2021, https://www.whitehouse.gov/briefing-room/statements-releases/2021/02/16/fact-sheet-biden-administration-announces-extension-of-covid-19-forbearance-and-foreclosure-protections-for-homeowners/; and related agency announcements.

c. FHFA extended the period to request multifamily forbearance through March 31, 2021, for mortgages backed by Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac.
